Articulation Agreement Guide

Articulation Agreement Guide

NCC actively creates partnerships with other accredited institutions of higher learning to ensure that our NCC community has access to amazing opportunities to continue to grow and be the best in their careers.

By partnering with other institutions that also have a student-first mentality, NCC hopes to strengthen our graduates' professional network and expand their opportunities to support their dreams in any direction they want to go.

Partnerships are developed based on the following criteria. Partner institutions must:

- Have active national or regional accreditation
- Have a student-first mentality
- Assign a designated representative/guide
- Be open to Transfer Credit Pathways for NCC Graduates

Northwest Career College has active articulation agreements with the following institutions:

- DeVry University
- Grand Canyon University

Frequently Asked Questions

Frequently Asked Questions

What is a transfer credit?

Transfer Credits are awarded when an educational institution recognizes that credit earned at another institution is equivalent to their own specific course requirements.

Important Notes about Transfer Credits:

- Transfer Credit is not guaranteed between institutions.
- Transfer Credit is granted on a case-by-case basis after an institution performs a transcript evaluation.
- Transfer Credit is typically granted for courses where a 2.0 GPA or higher was earned.

What is an articulation agreement?

Articulation Agreements are contracts between two educational institutions that formalize a transfer credit evaluation partnership and other partnership benefits for students.

Important Notes about Articulation Agreements:

- Formal articulation agreements between institutions create Transfer Credit Pathways to pre-evaluate coursework from a specific program into a specific program.
- Articulation Agreements are in place for each of the partner institutions listed in this guide.

Frequently Asked Questions

Which schools will accept my NCC credits?

Northwest Career College's current Education Partners listed in this guide have evaluated NCC Programs and are able to award transfer credit based on approved transfer credit pathways.

- A dedicated representative from our Education Partner institutions is available to meet one-on-one with interested students to do a personalized transfer credit evaluation and answer any questions about how NCC credits specifically transfer.
- Students should also submit transcripts for any previous college or career training programs that they participated in other than NCC to see if they can receive additional transfer credit in addition to their NCC credits.
